Charles L. Benson

A. M. E. Church of Pensacola

The debt which you owe to Boleau & Tyson. You cannot pay to them, as they have been adjudged bankrupts
by the United States District Court and an Assignee appointed to take charge of their property and all claims and debts owed to them, for the benefit of their creditors. The sale which took place yesterday (Thursday) was by the Assignee for the benefit of the creditors—When a person or firm is adjudged a bankrupt the law compels them to make out a list and swear to it of all the debts they owe and also of all the debts or claims they have or hold.

against any person. or any debt that is owed to them. So you will see that when they make out the list the debt which you owe must necessarily be returned to the Assignee - Who will give you notice to pay. He will find out who the assignee is and inform Mr. L. C. and then you can see the Assignee and make what terms you can with him

Very Respectfully

Your obedient servant

Dec. 24, 1888.

My dear Father:

I arrived here safely, after a long ride in the cars.

Though tired with my journey, I write at once, as you directed me, that you may know I am safe and well.

I shall write again after Christmas, and tell you all about my visit to the Quaker
City, as it is often called.

With love to my dear
mother, I am

Your affectionate son,

Charles K. Thompson

LESSON 31.

John's Letter:

Ashton, July 15th 1883.

Dear Tom:

Ned and I are having lots of fun. Just think of getting up at five o'clock in the morning! Mother used to have a hard time to get us down to breakfast at seven. We have a boat, and we fish every day. There is a fine trout-pond about half a mile from the house.

We have been here two weeks, but it seems only two days. I suppose you are having a good time at the shore; but I like the country best.

Good-by, Tom.

Your friend, John.

THE COW AND THE ASS.

HARD BY a green meadow a stream used to flow,
So clear one might see the white pebbles below;
To this cooling stream the warm cattle would stray
To stand in the shade on a hot summer's day.

A cow quite oppressed with the heat of the sun,
Came here to refresh as she often had done;
And standing stock still, leaning over the stream,
Was musing, perhaps, or perhaps she might dream.

But soon a brown ass, of respectable look,
Came trotting up also to taste of the brook,
And to nibble a few of the daisies and grass;
"How d'ye do?" said the cow, "how d'ye do?"
said the ass.

"Take a seat," cried the cow, gently waving her hand.

"By no means, dear madam," said he, "while you stand."

Then stooping to drink, with a complaisant bow,
"Ma'am your health," said the ass,—"thank you sir," said the cow.

When a few of these compliments more had been past,

They laid themselves down on the herbage at last,
And waiting politely (as gentlemen must)
The ass held his tongue that the cow might speak first.

Then with a deep sigh, she directly began,
"Don't you think, Mr. Ass, we are injured by man?"

'Tis a subject that lays with a weight on my mind;
We certainly are much oppressed by mankind.

"Now what is the reason—(I see none at all),
That I always must go when Suke chooses to call?
Whatever I'm doing ('tis certainly hard)
At once I must go to be milked in the yard.

"I've no will of my own, but must do as they please,
And give them my milk to make butter and cheese;
I've often a vast mind to knock down the pail,
Or give Suke a box of the ears with my tail."

"But, ma'am," said the ass, "not presuming to teach—

"O dear, I beg pardon,—pray finish your speech;
I thought you had done, ma'am, indeed," (said the swain)

"Go on, and I'll not interrupt you again."

"Why, sir, I was only a going to observe,
I'm resolved, that these tyrants no longer I'll serve;
But leave them for ever to do as they please,
And look somewhere else for their butter and cheese."

Ass waited a moment, to see if she'd done,
And then, "not presuming to teach," he begun—

"With submission, dear madam, to your better
wit,

I own I am not quite convinced by it yet.

"That you're of great service to them is quite true
But surely they are of some service to you;
'Tis their nice green meadows in which you regale,
They feed you in winter when grass and weeds fail.

"'Tis under their shelter you snugly repose,
When without it, dear ma'am, you perhaps might be froze.

For my own part, I know I receive much from
man,
And for him, in return, I do all that I can."

The cow upon this cast her eyes on the grass,
Not pleased at thus being reproved by an ass;
Yet, thought she, I'm determined I'll benefit by't,
For I really believe that the fellow is right.
